

Get to know

Stanford's South Bay Cancer Center

Stanford Hospital & Clinics is extending care to the South Bay with a new outpatient Cancer Center scheduled to open to patients in summer 2015. Employees and medical staff are invited to drop in at their convenience to learn more about the new facility and its unique features for patients, physicians and staff.

Get to know

Stanford's South Bay Cancer Center

Stanford Cancer Center

875 Blake Wilbur Drive, Palo Alto

July 17, 2014

10am to 1pm

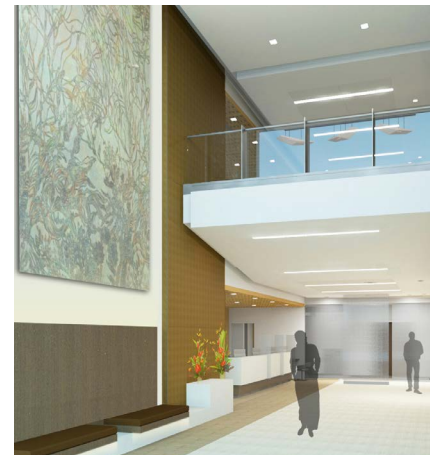

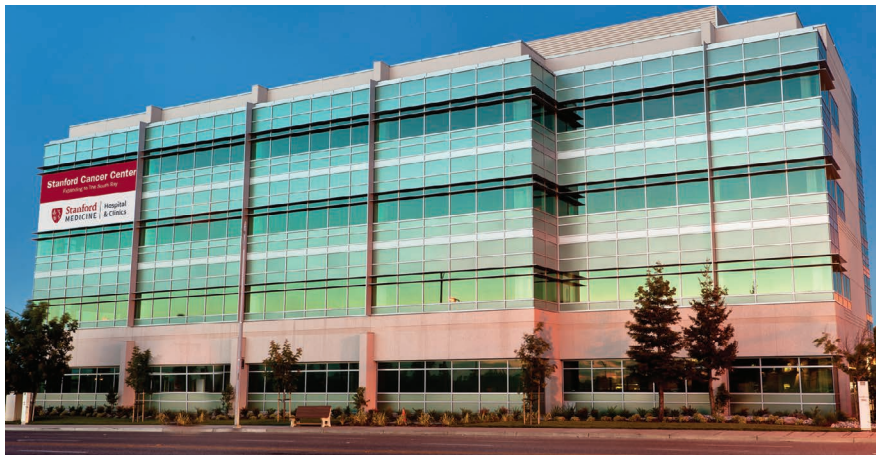

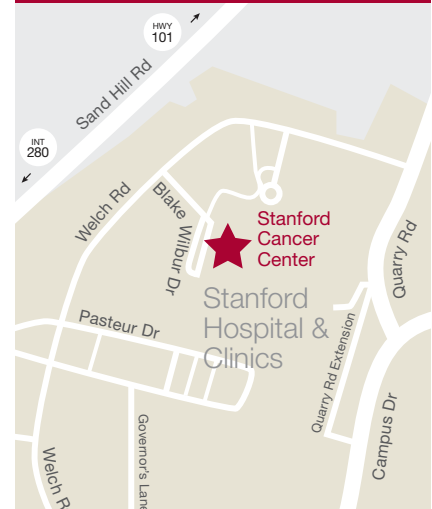

LIGHT REFRESHMENTS WILL BE SERVED.

Join Us!

Stanford Cancer Center

at the Stanford Hospital campus
875 Blake Wilbur Drive, Palo Alto
1st floor lobby

July 17, 2014 10am to 1pm

Stanford's South Bay Cancer Center will be located off Los Gatos Boulevard in San Jose off Highway 85. Construction is currently underway in the interior of the four-story, 70,000-square-foot building. The facility will include oncology clinics, support services, imaging services, radiation therapy, an infusion center, two operating rooms, a pharmacy, lab, family resource center, and café. The building will be Stanford Hospital & Clinics' first comprehensive outpatient facility located in the South Bay, offering patients coordinated medical services all in one convenient South Bay setting.

The facility is scheduled to open for patient care in the summer of 2015.

For more information, visit stanfordhospital.org/cancer/southbay.